RIVERSIDE HOTEL DESTROYED BY FIRE EARLY TUESDAY

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

By MELVIN LORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 23—(UP)—California will be able to collect a few additional dollars as a result of the repeal of the 1t8h amendment whether a special election control is called or not.

In an opinion issued by Attorney General U. S. Webb, it was held the state would be able to collect two cents a gallon on all beer, wine and hard liquor sold in the state.

Officials feared at first that the two cents a gallon tax placed on [illegible]ent beer might apply only [illegible]t particular beverage. But the attorney general believes otherwise.

California will receive $20,000,000 in federal funds as its share of the appropriation alloted to states, counties and cities for the repair of public buildings and highways, according to a telegram received by Governor Rolph from T. A. Reardon, director of the department of industrial relations.

Under terms of the alocation it will be possible to put 130,000 unemployed persons to work at wages ranging from 40 cents to $1.10 an hour.

California's recovery administration is itself in need of relief. A report issued by Administrator Edwin M. Dougherty reveals that the administration faces a deficit of $115,000. As a result no further action will be taken on California industrial codes, and state industries will have to come in under the NRA if at all. The only "out" in the opinion of Rolland A. Vandegrift, state director of finance, is the possibility the federal government will finance the state act.

The state finally was launched on an I. O. U. program when 8,000 warrants were issued by the controller for wages due state employees. Banks have agreed, however, to cash the warrants at par so that workers will not lose.

Attorney General U. S. Webb knocked out one argument against the $170,000,000 central valley water program. He ruled that under terms of the measure it would be impossible to use any state money in financing the project. As far as the state is concerned, he held, the project must be self supporting.

Governor Rolph finally settled a controversy that was growing to huge proportions when he appointed Warren Atherton of Stockton to the position left vacant on the state board of prison terms and paroles by the death of Charles Neumiller.

Work Planned To Be Started By December 1. 30 Hour Week To Be In Effect

Under the Civil Works program outlined by the Federal Administration, Truckee is scheduled to benefit by one of the $5,000 relief projects included in the plan.

The plan as outlined is to put 4,000,000 persons to work by December 15th and the cooperation of state and local officials is relied on to help carry out the schedule.

Each project is limited to $5,000 and it is planned to have from eight to ten projects under way in each county in every state.

The Department of Public Works has volunteered its entire personnel to the administration to put this re-employment program into immediate action. Carl Weeks, local State Highway Superintendent, has organized the projects in Nevada and Sierra Counties and will have general supervision of the carrying out of the works.

The work under the projects is outlined by county and municipal authorities and approved by the state department of Public Works.

C. Edmunds, a director of the Truckee Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the local NRA committee has accepted the responsibility of outlining the local project and assist in carrying out the work.

Edmunds states that ten or twelve men will be employed throughout the winter months and that preference will be given those with dependents. Thirty hours per week will be worked with a probable wage of 60c an hour.

CHARLES A. OCKER

CHARLES OCKER DIES SATURDAY IN SACRAMENTO

Had Been In Ill Health for Several Months. Funeral Is Held Tuesday P. M.

Charles A. Ocker, Justice of the Peace for the Meadow Lake Township, passed away at the Sutter Hospital in Sacramento last Saturday morning following an operation. Mr. Ocker had been in poor health for the past few months and was taken to Sacramento where it was hoped that an operation would prove beneficial.

In the passing of Judge Ocker, Truckee loses one of its outstanding citizens, who has been prominent in the public and business affairs of the town for many years. He was always a generous and kind hearted man and one who was ever willing to give help and assistance to those in need.

He was born near Ulm, Woltemberg. Germany on March 19, 1863, being left an orphan at the age of nine years. In July, 1876, with his sister, Mrs. Heage, he came to Clinton, Ohio, where he attended schools for a short period.

In 1881 he came west and settled in Truckee where he was employed for five years by the Truckee Lumber Company. He then entered the employ of the Boca Milling Company, leaving that company to enter the drayage business for himself in Truckee which he conducted for eleven years. He went to Oakland and learned the undertaking business with Halstead and Company and took over the undertaking business of Wm. McDougal following his death.

In 1914 he was appointed justice of the peace for the Meadow Lake Township and has been re-elected each term. He also served for many years as deputy coroner, and has taken an active part in the affairs of the Truckee Fire Department, serving as chief for many years.

Judge Ocker was twice married. His first wife was Miss Naoma Davis, a native of Missouri. To this union were born two daughters, Mrs. Georgia Follett of Truckee and Mrs. Lois Noddin of Orland. His second marriage united him to Miss Clara A. Finley, a native of Gilroy, Santa Clara County, who with his two daughters survive him.

In fraternal affairs Judge Ocker played one of the leading parts in the community. He was a member of Truckee Lodge No. 200, F. & A. M., serving as master for three terms. Also a member and Past High Priest of Donner Chapter No. 39, Royal Arch Mason, member of Gateway Council No. 13 Auburn, and Nevada Commandery No. 6, Knight Templars of Nevada City and a member of Truckee Chapter No. 116, Order of the Eastern Star,

FIRE CHIEF, TELEPHONE CO. ASK COOPERATION WHEN FIRE BREAKS OUT

Almost all Truckee fires are reported by telephone, it was estimated today by Fire Chief Frank Gaiennie and Manager A. P. Leitch of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company, who have completed a study of local fire reporting methods

Because of this high percentage of telephone use for such emergencies, Gaiennie and Leitch have requested the cooperation of Truckee residents in helping to keep the telephone lines open for other emergencies while fires are in progress.

"It is natural that Truckee people should desire to know where the fire is," said Leitch. "But when a flood of calls for this information is received at the central office, efficient handling of other emergency calls may be impaired.

"Should a second fire spring up while one is being fought, fire 'curiosity' calls, through keeping dozens of lines abnormally busy, might prevent or slow up the receiving and spreading of the new alarm. Also to be considered are urgent telephone calls asking for assistance in accidents and sudden illness.

"For these reasons Truckee telephone users will understand why information concerning fires and other emergencies cannot be given by telephone operators, and I am sure they will cooperate fully in helping maintain the efficiency of the local telephone system in this respect."

Gaiennie and Leitch pointed out two vital directions to be kept in mind in reporting fires by telephone:

"First: Call the operator, give your telephone number and say, 'I want to report a fire. Then stay on the line and state clearly where the fire is located. Failure to proceed in this manner will cause confusion and costly delay.

Second: What not to do when you hear the fire signal. Do not call the telephone central office to ask where the fire is located."

NEVADA COUNTY OFFICIALS ATTEND FUNERAL OF C. A. OCKER

There was a large number of officials of Nevada County in attendance of the funeral of C. A. Ocker on Tuesday. Among those present were County Treasurer Frank Steel, Deputy Assessor Ed Schmidt, Deputy County Clerk Ralph Deeble, Court Reporter Niles Coughlan, Probation Officer A. W. McGagin, Sheriff George Carter, Deputy Sheriff Joe Rickard, and Judge W. S. Mobley. Due to official business Judge Tuttle and District Attorney W. E. Wright were unable to attend.

SUAVE CLIVE BROOK AND SINISTER RAFT TOGETHER ON SCREEN

E. Phillips Oppenheim's famous melodrama, "Midnight Club" will be shown at the Donner Theatre next Sunday night.

Clive Brook, suave and courteous; George Raft, sinister but romantic; Alison Skipworth, sharp-tongued and short-tempered; and Helen Vinson, beauteous and alluring, are featured in the film.

Brook plays the role of the leader of a band of society jewel thieves. Raft is an American detective summoned to London by Scotland Yard.

Action of the picture centers around the supper club which the gang uses as a "front' for its operations. Raft meets them here, posing as a thief himself. They are unimpressed—until, on two successive occasions, he arrives at the scene of the crime first, and leaves them nothing for their trouble but empty safes. Then they decide to take him into their organization.

Raft thinks his plans are going along perfectly, and expects to amass his evidence quickly. But soon he finds himself deeply in love with Miss Vinson.

Nick Marich, Mill Worker, Suffocates from Smoke

Body Is Recovered After Fire Is Put Out. Truckee Volunteer Fire Department and Southern Pacific Fire Train Save Adjoining Buildings. Loss Estimated at $35,000

The Riverside Hotel, owned and operated by Mrs. Edith Fay, was destroyed by fire early Tuesday morning.

B. J. Toboni and W. B. Hooker, who were guests at the hotel, were awakened by the smell of smoke and upon opening the door of their room to investigate, found the hallway filled with smoke. The lights went out, plunging the hotel into darkness, making the work of arousing the guests extremely difficult. The men had a flashlight in their possession, enabling them to go thru the hotel and assist and aid the other guests.

There were fourteen guests in the hotel at the time and although some confusion was caused by the dense smoke, it was not necessary to use violence to remove anyone from the building as reported in many of the papers carrying an account of the fire.

W. T. Gostlin, Southern Pacific engineer, groped his way thru the smoke filled halls to the hotel porch, where he collapsed and was carried to safety.

Nick Marich, a cousin of George Andrich, who had been employed at the Hobart Mills lumber camp perished in the fire and his body was discovered in the afternoon in the ruins of the building. Marich had evidently placed a blanket over his head to protect himself from the smoke fumes but was overcome before he could get to safety.

The fire is believed to have started in the basement from the furnace or from the wiring.

The Truckee Volunteer Fire Department and the Southern Pacific fire train deserve great credit in keeping the fire confined to the hotel and preventing it from damaging the homes of J. B. Maxsom and Mrs. Tom Walker.

Mrs. Fay estimates her loss at $35,000 with only $5,000 insurance carried.

Repeal Bet Paid

Local Men Circulate Petitions For Judgeship Appointment

The appointment to fill the unexpired term of the late C. A. Ocker as justice of peace of Meadow Lake Township will be made at the next meeting of the Board of Supervisors to be held the first Monday in December.

Petitions are being circulated by C. E. Smith and Tim O'Hanrahan to be presented at the meeting of the supervisors requesting that consideration be given to them in making the appointment of justice of peace. REPEAL BRINGS FORTH MANY PROBLEMS

By United Press

Repeal of the 18th amendment has been accomplished, but the liquor problem remains to be solved, in the opinion of many California editors.

The try-out period just ahead, during which many methods will be given a chance, will effectively determine whether states are able to control the traffic, say the editors.

"Repeal of the dry law has been pushed to a swift conclusion chiefly as an economic issue," said the Santa Rosa Press-Democrat. "It has not been a moral issue because everybody who wanted to drink under prohibition found liquor one of the easiest things to buy. The economic record of prohibition has been decidedly unfavorable. Although the country has been slopping wet for years, the cost of attempted enforcement of the dry law totaled an estimated five hundred million dollars. The revenue lost to the government during the years of prohibition has been about eight billion dollars. Add these two costs together and you have quite a staggering sum to write down in red ink due to the noble experiment."

The Beverly Hills Citizen believes "prohibition was never understood because nobody in authority ever tried to enlist the country in its support. It was passed as an economic measure and its enforcement was undertaken as a moral issue. Prohibition was ruined by the fact that it got away from its real purpose in the minds of the people. If it had been explained in its real purpose, that of its economic worth, its enforcement would never have gotten into the hands of the scofflaws and been dismissed finally as a joke."

Declaring it is now idle to argue the merits of prohibition or recount the mistakes of leadership which led to its downfall, the Orange Daily News adds: "There may be some who believe that the liquor question will now depart from our social thinking; will cease to trouble our politics; will no longer obtrude upon our economic plans. If there are such, they are mistaken. Repeal is no such easy solution. If liquor control had not been a subject demanding imperative action, there would have been no prohibition. The passing of that policy leaves the original question as acute as ever."

Under the present California liquor control set-up, according to the Santa Ana Register, 'whiskey and beer, wine and gin, will be all the same and drunkenness and drunk driving, which are already on the increase, will mount and grow as the months pass. And the people will be forced to clean up the mess after the riot has had its fling, and the liquor cures and police courts and the asylums and the jails and the morgues will have done a most rushing business."

"At any rate," said the Humboldt Standard, "on the face of opinion expressed at the polls in the states which have voted repeal, it is apparent that the majority of the people are opposed to prohibition, on national scale at least. In view of the large majorities that have been registered in most of these states, there must be good reason for such a radical change of sentiment during the 13-year period."

But, cautions the Stockton Record, popular sentiment has gone into reverse on other questions than that of liquor, and "unless there is an effective attempt to regulate the rum traffic and avoid the old abuses and evils, there will be a public reaction just as surely as there was against aridity and the eighteenth amendment."

VENTURING

If the country wants a slogan in this great up-hill fight to recapture its lost prosperity, it might do worse than adopt the words of the President in his New York speech the other day:

"We have ventured and we have won; we shall venture further and we shall win again."

Our people have lost much in these years of business and mental depression. One of the greatest losses has been the spirit of venture. In our down-heartedness we became passive, merely waiting for things to improve.

But human affairs do not improve unless human beings improve them. Economic laws are not mere natural forces operating automatically.

Economic laws are simply the ways in which people, in the mass, go about the business of making a living. When enough of us change the spirit and method of our effort, the laws themselves change.

It is a great thing to change from fatalism and defeatism to a spirit like this. Venture and win—venture and win again—that's the way. We shall lose a battle here and there, but we won't lose the war.

SPANISH HOUSES

Spanish houses of greatest beauty are like persons of quality, in that they do not proclaim their personal affairs nor parade their possessions in public. Moreover, the revelation of their charm of personality is reserved for those who through ties of family or friendship, are admitted to the inner rooms and walled enclosures.

It is for this reason that the Spanish house of qaulity flaunts no attention-attracting ornamentation to the passer-by, gives no inkling of its character, its intentions or its possession. On the street side the facade is of white-washed stone or stucco, unbroken on its lower floor save by occasional windows, small in size and heavily shuttered, latticed, or grilled; from the vantage-ground of which those within may look out, but through which those without may glimpse no detail within.

Because of its mystery, the charm of this type of Spanish house is as tantalizing as the fleeting glimpse on an upper balcony of its own Castilian or Andalusian beauties whose dark eyes gleam above their fans held in slim jeweled fingers. The allure of mystery and romance belongs, moreover, to the old Spanish house alone. Cold Northern blank-walled buildings are just that—and the reason for their unresponsiveness leaves one incurious. But low rambling Spanish walls that encircle gardens—the telltale trees and vines of which escape here and there above a coping—have all the allure of a shut-in paradise.

This is why it is just about as suitable to tack the label "Spanish" on a commonplace, vulgar white or pink or blue or yellow pile of chunky, topless square, perched upon a bleak plot of unfenced land with windows on all sides open to the ground, as it would be to build an adobe pueblo dwelling, trim its parapet with a Greek cornice, stand some Greek or Roman columns against the front of it, and call it "Colonial."

The rules governing Spanish architecture, of course, have plenty of contradictory exceptions. If one happens, for instance, to dislike the suggestion of living in walled seclusion, one may with propriety and with best taste interpret the Spanish style as one pleases, so long as its quality of reserve be not lost. The result could be any plain-walled building with a beautiful doorway and deep-set windows with spool-turned spindles covering a casement that opens inward. It might even be something suggestive of plantation architecture, in that it could have wide second-story verandas and its roof-tiles laid shingle flat.

Beautiful Spanish houses are always those which are simple in effect and low in proportion to their widespread area.—Emily Post, in "The Personality of a House" (New York: Funk and Wagnalls.)

SEA SCAPES

I lie and dream in the soft warm sand; and the thunder and surge and the baffled roar
Of the sea's relentless and vain endeavors are a pleasant lullaby, here on the shore.
Since a little hillock screens yonder
ageless, tenacious batlings
(which shatter, and pass
In foam and spume), I appraise, half-nodding, much sand and sky and gaunt nodding grass.
And I am content to lie and dream;
and I am too busy to rise and see
If it be worth breasting—that ocean yonder, which a little hillock hides from me.

Politically Speaking

By GEORGE E. HELMER

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 23—(UP)—California's liquor regulatory laws, adopted by the people a year ago, have provoked one of the hottest controversies in many months, and nobody seems to know what the outcome will be.

Hotelmen, leading the revolt against the constitutional amendment, seek a change to permit serving in public dining rooms. Officials of "dry" communities want local option power. Tax proponents desire a method of collecting revenue from liquor sales. Certain legislators and other state officials would like to see liquor law enforcement taken from the hands of the board of equalization, which now has supreme power to grant licenses, collect taxes, if any are levied, and enforce the regulations.

Governor James Rolp suggested calling a special election to liberalize the law, provide for taxation, and give local communities a voice in deciding how the situation should be handled.

Immediately there arose conflicting cheers and cries of protest. It was felt the people generally would object to the state spending another $500,000 for an election. Ray Riley, state controller, feared an election would give sales tax opponents a chance to place a repeal measure on the ballot. Numerous leaders said, "Give the law a chance; let's see how it will work." Others insisted that if it were to be liberalized, a change should be made immediately, before the populace changes its mind and decides that, after all, the present law may be a bit too liberal.

"If you permit serving liquor in dining rooms," said Assemblyman William Hornblower, we'll have 4,000 saloons in San Francisco. What are the hotel men squawking about? They drafted the present law. Anyway, who wants to drink whiskey with a meal?'

And the hotelmen are unable to agree on just what they want. Some desire to serve cocktails; others believe wines are sufficient for the dining room. Many fear the speakeasy will continue to flourish and draw people away from hotels.

Some 50 hotel managers met with the board of equalization and accomplished nothing except a promise to observe the present law. The meeting was very secret. Two newspapermen who had the audacity to enter, seeking information, were ejected forciby rather than being asked to leave. The hotel people did not wish the public to know what they were talking about.

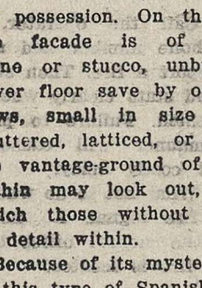
Hornblower insists the law should be left alone "at least until the people decide what they want." The present hysteria and unrest were expected to settle in due time.

Meanwhile, Fred E. Stewart, member of the board of equalization, said present regulations would be enforced to the limit beginning December 5, when repeal becomes effective.

A WISE WOMAN KNOWS VALUE OF FUN IS AID TO BEAUTY

By JACQUELINE HUNT

EVERY life to be well balanced must have time for a little fun. There must be a place in it for companionship and excitement. Try the little trick of being a glamourous lady on the side. All day long you can be a business woman, alert and dependable, but when the stars are shining drop that business-like garb. Romance and glamour should come with night. Whoever you are, whatever you do, those who love you will be thrilled to see you so lovely and feminine.



MISS HUNT

As soon as you get home from your office, slip out of your business clothes and take a pick-up bath. Or, if you devote all of your energies toward keeping your home in order and caring for your family, save the half hour just before dinner for yourself. Take a refreshing bath with one of those fragrant little herb packs that can be used like a wash cloth or use one of the many kinds of bath lotions that have relaxing properties and leave your skin as soft as velvet.

Lie in the warm bath for fifteen or twenty minutes. And don't forget to add bath salts; they are so soothing to tired nerves so stimulating to the spirit. Bath crystalls come in every odoeur. You have several kinds and use the particular scent that suits your mood. If you can do that it gives you a feeling of luxury and well-being that is good for every woman. Now a shower of dusting powder or a gentle spray of cologne water over your still-damp body.

Next lie down on a firm surface—your bed if it isn't too soft or on a folded quilt on the floor, where you can rest your body while you take a lazy pick-up treatment for your face. Be sure that the skin is absolutely clean; then pat over it again and again with pads of cotton wet in ice-cold skin tonic. Lay little pads of cotton wet in the cold tonic or in cold witch hazel over your eyes and imagine yourself floating lazily along on the crest of a white and green wave.

When you feel cool and rested, apply your make up. It's smart to be natural these days—where cheeks are concerned—but you can be quite bold and gay in your treatment of lips and eyes. Especially for evening. Follow your mood in both make up and in the clothes you wear. Make your face fit your dress—and the occasion. But try not to let your make up be obvious—men are a bit touchy that way and you cannot be glamorous and obvious at the same time.

If you spend your days at home and do your own housework you need relaxation in the evenings too. When you take your refreshing bath before dinner, slip into something soft and feminine and becoming, and if you can have a few friends drop in occasionally for a few hands of bridge or chatting. If you can manage it, try to get away from your home occasionally where you can dance and sparkle and enjoy yourself. It will make you a happier and more successful wife and mother.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Household Accumulations Make Excellent Breeding Places for Germs

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

THE possibilities of carbon monoxide poisoning by the fumes in our gas grates or auto engines is not the only danger that follows the approach of cold weather. Somehow when the temperature begins to drop, we seem inclined to shut the doors and windows with a bang and huddle ourselves up as if we had suddenly moved to a different climate. We begin at once to lose some of the invigorating effects of the abundant fresh air and sunshine of the summer months. We need to offset this decreasing warmth in the air by adding slightly to our clothing and by getting frequent deep full breaths of out door air.

MOST of us in the temperate zone are getting our dwellings in shape for the winter. Special precaution is needed in opening up grates that have been in disuse and in re-installing gas heating equipment. Chimneys should be free of soot and every pipe that carries combustible gasses should be carefully inspected. It is very easy to have joints loosened and vent pipes slipped out of place, during the warm season. There are very reliable systems of vacumn cleaning now available which will draw all dust and soot out of every aparture of your heating and ventilating plant. It will be done, too, at a very reasonable cost.

IF THIS hasn't been done in the spring it should certainly be done before starting the furnace for the winter. It will make a surprising lot of difference in the ease with which your house can be kept clean and since disease is usually traceable to some form of dirt, pure air in the home will aid in reducing the hazards of illness. Much of the tendency to take cold with the onset of cooler weather is this inclination to shut up our houses and to poke around in the accumulated dust and ashes of the grates and furnaces.

WHEN moving to a new home, be especially careful that your predecessor has left no uncapped gas lines or rubbish of any sort. Children like nothing better than to pick over some discarded belongings which are often left behind instead of being destroyed. It might amaze some good housekeepers to know what potential illnesses are stored in our cluttered attics. Many disease germs are capable of living for years if left undisturbed. Then when, for any reason, light and warmth reach them they are ready for action.

IF THE modern tendency to build small apartments and much smaller houses does cramp us somewhat it will at any rate leave us less able to hoard such endless heaps of worthless things. Mice and moths are a source of great damage to these unused accumulations but worse than that, they attract vermin, like roaches, which travel to every part of the house and carry any bacteria over which they may pass. If your storage room has any damp spots,

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Henry and children, Patsy and Junior, were guests at a rabbit dinner on Sunday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Planett and son Fred of Carnelian Bay.

On Saturday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Pomin and son Robert of Tahoe City left for San Francisco on the first leg of their winter vacation trip, which is expected to consume several months' time. From Los Angeles they will motor East by the southern route visiting famous historical spots enroute.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Pomin of Idlewild motored to Sacramento on Sunday to participate in the birthday festivities given in honor of their elder grandson, who became two years old.

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Worden and family of Sunnyside left Tahoe on Saturday for Marysville and Yuba City, spending the week end there.

Crowds of young and old are gathering enthusiastically each night at the Tahoe Ice Skating Pond on the Truckee River where a huge bonfire and hot coffee assist greatly in making these snappy, freezing nights more endurable. Many of the youngsters are becoming quite proficient in the art of fancy skating. All are cordially invited to bring their skates and join the crowd of merrymakers any evening.

On Saturday night Mrs. Stella Watson, Mrs. Charles Swanson and Mrs. C. W. Vernon, assisted by Miss Florence Vernon, were joint hostesses at a combination dance and bridge party held at the Tahoe Women's Clubhouse. The dance was a typical old fashioned hard-time ball, with a prize given for the most unique costume. An air of rural festivity was created by a gorgeous scattering of hay all around the room, and guests sitting on benches instead of chairs, while dishpans and rag rugs served as frames for non-sensical caricatures which afforded much merriment. Music for the dance was furnished by a two piece orchestra consisting of C. W. Vernon, who wielded a wicked pair of drumsticks and brass cymbals in accompaniment to the piano playing by Mrs. Charles Swanson. Old time tunes of years gone by were selected as most in keeping with the "good old days" and the Virginia Reel, waltz; Paul Jones, broom dance, schottische and tag dance were among the favorites of the evening. Dignity was thrown to the seven winds as Tahoe's respectable citizens arrayed themselves in ludicrous and original costumes and capered about with the spirit of sweet sixteen. Mr. Weller Atherton, with rouged cheeks and painted lips, sported a white beaded evening gown (of his wife's) with a huge pink flower coyly perched on his shoulder (and was a scream later on when he completely forgot he was a lady, crossed his legs and proceeded to smoke like a chimney). Mr. and Mrs. William Wathen were a panic in clothes that were shredded to a frazzle, Mrs. C. O. Valentine was charming in the captivating raiment of Lillian Russel's day; Mrs. George Bliss in old fashioned blouse, skirt and hat and a hideous pair of false teeth which protruded like a nightmare, proved a burlesque show all by herself, sending the assembled guests into near hysterics. Mrs. A. M. Henry wore a black lace gown of other days and a tiny hat with a huge yellow plume perched on the side of her auburn locks, Mrs. John Stevens in trainman's blue demin "rompers," Mrs. Si Pierson in quaint black cloth hat and dress lavished with fringes, Mrs. Ted Marshall in gown made of red bandana handkerchiefs, Mrs. J. E. Pomin in a plaid silk gown of yesteryear, which billowed about her gracefully and was most becoming with her tiny hat and its large fluffy plume, Stella Watson in a pale lavender crepe kimono (secured with safety pins), Mrs. Bliss Hinkle in a dress resembling a Scotch highlander, Mrs. Otis Hursey arrayed in some of hubby's castoffs, the Bill Tops in prehistoric finery of other days, Mrs. Fred Cowell in a trailing wide-striped linen suit. These were only some of the rare sights which kept the crowd in almost continuous laughter all evening.

Grenadine fruit punch was served between dances, and about 9:30 they formed into lines and to the tune of a lively march, paraded before the judges' stand.

The ladies prize for the best cos tume was awarded Mrs. W. A. Simmonds by the followings judges: Mr. C. O. Valentine, Joe Henry, J. J. Planett, Fred Planett and J. E. Pomin. She so cleverly disguised herself as old "Agnes," colorful Indian character who inhabits Tahoe and vicinity during the summer months, that she fooled even her best friends, as she cavorted up and down the hall, stooping low over her crooked stick, with hooded head and bulging back, rattling with tin cans on her back.

N. R. Mayfield took the men's prize in a tattered suit and hat which boasted scarcely a square inch of sound material. In fact, his "get-up" aroused such genuine sympathy among his townsfolk that he solemnly swears he will experiment in the future by wearing it when he goes forth to try to collect long overdue bills.

Bridge was enjoyed by those who did not dance, prizes for high scores going to Mrs. George Bliss and Mr. W. A. Simmonds. Mr. M. Hollenbeck was winner of the door prize. Just before supper was served at a late hour, the old game of "Spin the Plate" was enjoyed by the entire crowd, and the welkin rang with the gales of laughter which arose as the penalties for "forfeits" were meted out by Judge James Christie. The atmosphere for a time was changed from that of a barn dance to a gymnasium as Ernie Pomin of Idlewild had to "roll on the floor from one end of the room to the other," Bill Topp had to "turn sommersaults clear around the hall," and so forth and so on. A savory supper was served later, on clean, but disreputable looking dishes, and all departed for home declaring they hadn't had so much fun "since Heck was a pup," voting the evening a huge success.

Invitations were issued to the following Messrs. and Mesdames: E. H. Pomin, J. E. Pomin, George Bliss, M. Hollenbeck, William Wathen, Fred Cowell, Henry Hinkle, John Stevens, A. M. Anderson, Weller Atherton, C. W. Atherton, W. A. Simmonds, Ted Marshall, A. M. Henry, J. J. Planett, J. Malcolm, Carl Bechdolt, C. O. Valentine, Joe Howrigan, N. R. Mayfield, William Topp, Otis Hursey, Henry Soll, Herbert Nichter, Si Pierson, H. D. Worden, Chris Neilsen, Frank Armstrong, N. Bird, George Allan, Chas. Heller, William Oliver, Phil Gallenger, Joe Duffee and Messrs. Robert Watson, Harry Johansson, Jimmie Christie, Gene Rogers and Fred Kohler.

On Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Chris Neilsen of Sunnyside were hosts at a chicken dinner honoring Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Worden and family and Mrs. Bliss Hinkle. Miss Helen Worden held high score at bridge, which occupied the remainder of the evening.

Residents of Tahoe and vicinity were deeply grieved to learn of Judge Ocker's death on Saturday at Sacramento. The sincere and heartfelt sympathy of the entire region is extended Mrs. Ocker in her hour of bereavement. A man of sterling worth and highest respectability, his passing is a aistinct shock to Truckee and all other communities where he was so well known and highly regarded.

A crew of men is busy this week cutting ice on the Truckee River, the thickness of which at this writing, is about 10 inches.

Beauiful weather continues at Tahoe, with mornings and evenings at freezing temperature. Patches of snow remain here and there in the low lands, with the mountains still well mantled in white. Old timers are wondering if we are to have a snowless Thanksgiving, which is a bit unusual for Tahoe.

The Tahoe Grammar School recently banded a number of its pupils together and formed the "Little Glee Club," specializing in harmony and three part songs. Eunice Duffee is president, Dorothy Hollenbeck is secretary and Marilyn Hinkle is treasurer. The group meets each Wednesday night in the Clubhouse, where folk dancing and singing occupies an hour or more with a "frazzle" following. Each mother takes turns at entertaining. Besides the officers named above club members include Patsy Henry, Margaret Luhrs, Ralph Mantifel, Chas. Miner, Billie Bechdolt, Mrs. A. M. Henry and Mrs. Phil Gallenger.

Because of the contiuued fine weather, it is now likely that the grammar school will not close its doors for the season until December 15th. The closing date was previously announced as December 8th. Prolonging the session a week later now, will defer for another week the opening of the school in the Spring, making this come the first week in April instead of the last week in March. Of course, if bad weather sets in, the original date will be observed in closing.

Tahoe's 23 piece orchestra is making very satisfactory progress under the tutorage of Otto Fox of Auburn. Extensive preparations are being made by them for a public concert to be held at the closing of school, before Christmas. The orchestra is constituted as follows: Barbara Howrigan, pianist, Donald Cowell and Billie Bechdolt, drummers, Mrs. Viola Cowell and Florence Vernon, xylophones, Charles Miner, trombone, Oliver Hendrikson and Ralph Mantifel, cornets, Junior Henry and Herbert Obexer, first clarinets, Walter Mandeville and Patsy Henry, second clarinets, Mrs. Gallenger, flute, Sue Hinkle, Kathleen Anderson, Charles Hendrikson, Pedro Vanni and Malcolm Walker, violins, Marilyn Hinkle, cello, Mrs. A. M. Henry, Hawaiian guitar, Robert Cowell, Margaret Luhrs and Mary Jane Soll Spanish guitars. Practice is being held several times a week at the school house, and those who have heard the rehearsals hold forth a promise of an excellent performance at the coming entertainment.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Pearsoll, caretakers at the Shainwald estate at Sunnyside, will leave for their home in San Francisco next week, after having spent the summer months at Tahoe.

Miss Barbara Howrigan has returned to Tahoe after having visited friends in Sacramento.

Mr. and Mrs. William Topp of Tahoe Cedars are improving the appearance of their cottage by the addition of a stone chimney and fire place, which they are rushing to complete before the snow flies. There are rumors of a house-warming in prospect when the job is finished.

Bob Watson of Tahoe City escaped death or serious injury last week when the heavy truck and trailer he was driving left the road when a steering knuckle broke. Miraculously, no one was hurt. The accident occurred while hauling logs in the vicinity of Squaw Valley.

Counterfeit Money Turns Out To Be Stage Money

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 23—(UP)—Sheriff's deputies had visions of big-time crooks as they sped to a roadhouse in answer to the call "there's a counterfeiter here."

Arriving at the roadhouse the officers were shown two bills taken in as $5 pieces. The passer was pointed out.

When accosted by the deputies, however, Jack O'Brien merely grinned, produced a handful of the supposed counterfeit bills and said: "Just having some fun—you see its stage money." It was.

RED CROSS DISTRIBUTES FOOD AND CLOTHING TO CALIFORNIA DESTITUTE

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 23—(UP)—Enough clothing, bedding and flour to supply a large army has been distributed among California's needy by the American Red Cross, according to a report received by Governor James Rolph.

Throughout the state, 279,403 barrels of flour were distributed for bread making. A total of 4,224,765 yards of cotton cloth went into various kinds of clothing, and in addition, 2,156,312 cotton garments were provided.

Nearly 20,000 persons are wearing sweaters because of the relief work, and 95,348 blankets and comforters brought warmth to another army of unfortunates.

One hundred and twenty-four chapters participated in distributing the supplies. Los Angeles county was the seat of the most activity in that respect. The Los Angeles city chapter distributed 12 times the amount of flour needed in San Francisco, nearly four times the cotton cloth and twice as much of the other commodities.

There was no definite estimate of the number of individuals or families reached by the relief work.

Report of the aid, which extended to every county in the state, was made as the organization began its annual drive for funds to permit carrying on its work during the approaching winter. It expected to distribute similar amounts of commodities, despite a general improvement in conditions.

CURSES ON THE LUCK

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 23—(UP)—An itinerant worker is probably cursing his luck as he wends his way over the state's highways following an experience here.

Awakened from a sound sleep on the lawn near the Southern Pacific depot, the wanderer gazed in astonishment as police officers dug up $45 from the ground on which he had made his bed.

The money represented the proceeds from loot disposed of by four men the authorities had taken into custody as burglars.

TIRE CHAINS NEEDED

Tire chains should be included in the tool kit of every car that may be driven off or away from main highways in the winter, according to the Free Emergency Road Service of the California State Automobile Association. If a new car has been purchased old tire chains should be checked for size. If the tires are slightly different in size the chains will be of no value in an emergency unless they have been altered to fit the new tires.

HOME-MADE DIVING HELMET

MODESTO, Cal.—(UP)—With a section of sheet metal boiler and a bicycle pump, Kenneth Graham, city engineering department employe, made himself a diving helmet in which he remained under water for 15 minutes.

Graham descended 10 feet below the surface to fasten bolts during construction of the Lake Modesto dam. A. L. Walsh, a fellow employe, worked the pump.

Hitch-Hikers Steal Car From Sacramento Man

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 23—(UP)—Hitch-hikers will probably receive nothing but an icy glance the next time they wag a thumb at J. G. Knox of Knights Landing.

Knox picked up two men on the highway between Sacramento and Woodland. The hikers later tossed Knox out of the machine and headed back toward the capital.

Returning to Sacramento, Knox reported the matter to police and asked aid in finding his car. When activity of the authorities failed to produce results, Knox started a search for the machine himself—and found it.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 23—(UP)—The badge presented Director of Public Works Kelly by members of his office staff before he embarked upon his recent trip to Washington, D. C., proved to be more than an ornament to the director, he revealed here the other day.

At a Chicago theatre where the S. R. O. sign had been displayed, Kelly was escorted past a long line of disappointed patrons in regal style, and given one of the best seats in the house.

The theatre usher had noticed the badge and thought he was the chief of police.

Criminologist Says Drinking Should Be Made Open

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 23—(UP)—Public drinking and low liquor taxes will do more to aid real temperence than anything else, in the opinion of Charles H. Stone, criminologist of the state bureau of criminal identification and investigation.

Repeal should be aimed at the elimination of the bootlegger and drunkenness, Stone said.

"The first step to eliminate drunkenness," Stone explained, "is to make drinking absolutely open and above board. There is nothing wrong with drinking; the evil is in drunkenness.

"If drinking was made public and responsibility placed entirely upon the shoulders of the licensed dispensers, drunkenness would decrease or disappear.

"The license of a dispenser could be speedily revoked if there was drunkenness on his premises, or if he was caught selling to an intoxicated person."

The old saloon, with its signs prohibiting minors and women, was psychologically wrong, Stone believes.

"That was confession that things went on behind the swinging doors unfit for children or women to see. I say make drinking open—and keep it clean," he said.

In the opinion of the criminologist, the bootlegger will not be eliminated if he can undersell the legitimate operator who must pay taxes.

"The bootlegger," Stone explained, will pay the internal revenue tax to keep the federal authorities off his trail. But he probably will attempt to evade all the rest of the levies and continue in the business of underselling."

While the bootlegger, in many cases, has enjoyed the outright sympathy of the public up to now, people probably will begin to realize he is not a benefactor, but a racketeer in the business to make all the money he can, Stone believes.

KEEP PLATES TIGHT

When license plates are attached to the cross bar in front of the radiator the clamps should be drawn up tight, according to the Free Emergency Road Service of the California State Automobile Association. If the clamps are loose, wind pressure, when the car is traveling fast, forces the plate against the radiator. Many radiators are damaged in this manner.

ROYAL DOGS

Queen Victoria, at one time owned 83 dogs. The Prince of Wales owns three, Cora, John and Hamish. They are Cairn terriers, and on has a flight of stairs leading up to the Prince's bed, where it may sleep any time.

Strawberries are so named because they were originally brought to market strung on straws.

"I will deliver thee out of the hand of the wicked, and I will redeem thee out of the hand of the terrible." These words from the Book of Jeremiah comprise the Golden Text to be used next Sunday in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Messerism and Hypnotism, Denounced." Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "And when they shall say unto you Seek unto them that have familiar spirits, and unto wizards that peep and that mutter: should not a people seek unto their God? for the living to the dead? To the law and to the testimony: if they speak not according to his word, it is because there is no light in them." (Isa. : 19, 20).

The following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy will also be included: "When sufficiently advanced in Science to be in harmony with the truth of being, men become seers and prophets involuntarily, controlled not by demons, spirits, or demigods, but by the one Spirit." (p. 84.)

STAGE COACH OWNERS DEMAND HIGH PRICES

GRASS VALLEY, Cal., Nov. 23—(UP)—Old-time stage coaches may look like so much junk in this motorized age, but they remain priceless in the eyes of their owners.

Charles Tyron of Angels Camp recently visited this section seeking an old coach for use in the annual Jumping Frog Celebration of Calaveras county. Only a few of the ancient vehicles were located and not one owner could be persuaded to part with them.

The prized vehicles were held in such esteem by one owner he was said to have refused $1,000 for a coach.

Liquor Problems Are Many

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 23—(UP)—Even the beer and wine sections of the state liquor regulatory act contain problems of grave concern to both dealers and officials.

One provision of the act requires that beer and wine may be sold for public consumption on the premises only in establishments where meals are regularly served. The law specifies meals must be served at tables.

The latest question up for decision under this provision is whether a bar or lunch counter becomes a table after a row of chairs or stools are installed in front of them.

Milk is heavier than cream. The oil and fat in the cream causes it to rise to the top.

CALIFORNIA RANKS HIGH IN U. S. VEGETABLE PRODUCTION

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 23—(UP)—There's no denying it, California counties know their vegetables—and produce them.

A report of the state department of agriculture giving results of a federal survey showed 12 of the leading 50 vegetable producing counties of the United States were located in California. They were Imperial, Sacramento, Monterey, Los Angeles, San Joaquin, Alameda, Solano, Santa Clara, Stanislaus, Santa Barbara, Contra Costa and Orange.

Imperial county led the entire list with 71,960 acres under cultivation and a vegetable crop valued at $14,609,027.

ONLY TWO PER CENT OF STATES POPULATION HAVE NO LIBRARIES

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 23—(UP) — Residents of California should be among the best read people of the world.

Statistics on file at the state library show that only 2 per cent of the state's population is without local library facilities, and these have access to the 400,000 volumes in the state library if they care to use them.

According to national figures, California is fourth in the nation in serving all the people by local libraries, being surpassed only by Delaware, Massachusetts and New Hampshire. Only three California counties, Alpine, Mono and Calaveras, do not have libraries.

ADULT EDUCATION—Part Two

"Better Citizenship Among Citizens," is the motto of the Civic-Social program of the evening high school. Tens of thousands of California citizens among the 326,000 adults enrolled in evening schools have, during the last year, spent from one to five nights each week studying the social and civic problems of the state and nation.

This program is giving a new significance to American citizenship in the ability to rise above prejudice and deal with facts honestly, to make adaptations to new ways of thinking and living, to maintain independence and self-help without hurt to other people.

Until little more than ten years ago foreigners poured into the United Staes in hordes. Regardless of their worth as individuals, they were for the most part not adjusted to American ideals, American institutions, American life.

Between 1830 and 1930 more than 30,000,000 aliens came to the United States. The influx of these aliens has greatly complicated the school's work of developing citizens. But the public school reaches only the second generation. The great majority of those coming of later years have been adults beyond the reach of the public school.

To acquaint this large body of foreigners as quickly as possible with American thought and ideals, and with American institutions, the evening high schools have undertaken an organized program of Americanization education.

This work is in the nature of protection to American institutions, it is of vital importance at present that few American citizens would recommend that it be discontinued.

The avocational phase of the work of the evening high school is designed to broaden the lives of adults in a cultural way. Never before in the history of mankind has the need for activities of this kind been so great. Hours of labor have been reduced by half during the last century. Today millions of American men and women are fruitlessly seeking employment.

Adults, in order to live a normal American life, should know how to employ their leisure hours, whether in a depression period or out of it, in wholesome and constructive cultural and recreational pursuits.

Good books, good music, good plays, good art in all of its various phases; good hobbies of any sort or kind; desirable forms of physical activities: these are some of the ways in which the evening school is attempting to aid adults to find legitimate and sane enjoyment and happiness.

FADS AND FRILLS IN EDUCATION ART AND MUSIC, Part One—

Reading, penmanship and arithmetic are "tool subjects" and as such they are necessary in the training of every citizen. They may be considered part of the "bread and butter" equipment of the citizen. But they are not basically character—building in purpose or effect.

The bread and butter aspect of life has with the "Machine Age' become relatively less important. Where men and women, and even small children, a hundred years ago labored as a rule twelve to fifteen hours per day to produce enough of the necessities for society to subsist upon, the necesary work of the world can now be done by adults working not more than six hours a day. The result in human terms is a vast amount of enforced leisure. If human society is to endure in safety we must teach ourselves and our children how to use this leisure wholesomely.

Modern society has, to its own sorrow, over-emphasized the "making-a-living" phase of existence to the extent that we are in danger of forgetting how to live. Money and materials are necessary only because they provide the means of life. But money and materials never have and never can provide fulfillment of life. Human life cannot attain fulfillment on material grounds alone.

The cave man twenty thousand years ago drew pictures on the walls of his caves to satisfy his yearnings for the artistic. The ear of savage man was caught by the pleasing sound of his bowstring, and he invented the first stringed instrument to satisfy his inward desire for music.

Material and wealth can satisfy most of man's animal urges for food, shelter and comfort. Man's distinctly human urges depend upon, among other things, music and art. For man to deny himself these things is to deny his human destiny.

To over-emphasize the material phases of existence—to over-emphasize, as modern society has done and is doing, the making of a living—can only result in the deterioration of human character, and the eventual breaking down of social and moral principles.

The artistic, or, to call them by a broader term, the aesthetic cravings of man will not be denied. If we neglect them in their legitimate and socially constructive phases, we will inevitably find ourselves in a kind of questionable traffic, attempting to satisfy ourselves—trying to find life fulfillment—in illicit and socially destructive activities. On the one hand is the opportunity for the artistic and the wholesome, through which lies the way to sane happiness; on the other hand is the inartistic, the immoral, seducing society to the insanity of hilarity. We have gone a long way in the latter direction. A great many people today are mistaking hilarity for happiness. The poise and balance of character and culture can be obtained only through the truly artistic.

BANK OF AMERICA RESTORING NORMAL PAY OF EMPLOYEES

Bank of America National Trust and Savings Association and its associated state bank has announced increases in pay for 1,100 employes, to become effective on December 1, as a Christmas present to the employes affected.

In making the announcement, L. M. Giannini, senior vice-president, pointed out that the present salary adjustment is the second of its kind in recent months and is in line with the bank's previously announced policy of restoring salaries to a normal basis as general conditions and earnings continue to improve, and its desire to cooperate with the national administration's program of increasing the volume of business by improving purchasing power.

The full amount of the increase for the month of December will be paid on December 15, in order to provide employes with these extra funds for Christmas shopping to stimulate the volume of holiday trade.

HERO MELTS MEDAL AWARD FOR NEW LEG

DOWNEY, Cal., Nov. 23—(UP)—A solid gold Carnegie medal rereceived for bravery 27 years ago in Pierceville, Kan., was melted down by Andrew J. Hedger, 72, and sold to pay for an artificial limb.

Hedger, inmate of the Los Angeles county farm, received the prized award when, unaided, he dug two men out of a caved in well, while many stood by and watched, afraid to help because of fear of further caveins.

Six months ago Hedger's leg was amputated because of disease. Officials at the farm were unable to finance the purchase of an artificial limb.

Desiring to escape the inconvenience of crutches, Hedger took the Carnegie medal to Los Angeles and had it melted, receiving $150 for the bar of gold.

The aged hero was born in Kentucky in 1861. He resided for more than 15 years in Eugene, Ore.
